JSTOR Added to Library Resources

The Franklin University Library now provides access to JSTOR. Anyone with a Franklin University login can access JSTOR through the library. JSTOR includes collections of images and primary sources from libraries, museums, and archives around the world. Subject areas in JSTOR include: Area Studies (African Studies, Slavic Studies, etc.), the Arts, Business & Economics, History, the Humanities, Law, Medicine & Allied Health, Science & Mathematics, and the Social Sciences. You can learn more about JSTOR from the JSTOR tutorial.

DSA News and Notes

The first fall meeting of the Franklin University DSA for the academic year will take place September 26, with Dr. Denise Bergstrom, Program Chair for Cybersecurity, serving as the key presenter. Future meetings will be held twice a month: one in the evening and the other at lunch to best accommodate a variety of schedules.

Additionally, the DSA hosts a Writer's Group on Saturday at 10:00 AM EST for all interested doctoral students, regardless of where they might be in their journey. For more information, or for the Zoom link, please reach out to Dr. Amiee Wagner at amiee.wagner@franklin.edu.

Doctoral Faculty Advisors

As a part of recent Doctoral Program changes, Doctoral Faculty Advisors (DFAs) are now assigned in each program to serve the students of that program. The DFA answers emails from coursework students of their particular program, meets routinely with the program chair, and organizes four workshops per semester to help students succeed.

Additionally, doctoral students now have a Doctoral Success Center available in Canvas. This is not a class, but rather a resource where students might find useful information and contact their relevant DFA. The DFAs for each program are:
